Digital Marketing

Are you looking for new ways to reach your existing customers and to drive prospective customers to your website and branch locations? Many institutions are using digital marketing channels – such as email, social, search and mobile – to reach and engage their audiences. As institutions quickly adopt digital channel marketing, often some key factors are overlooked.

Raddon can help institutions considering spending more time and energy on digital marketing. We will evaluate your online brand presence and marketing tactics along with your email marketing communication strategy and make recommendations for testing, measurement and optimization.

Raddon will develop an integrated digital marketing strategy that will help your financial institution connect with consumers by engaging them in digital channels. We will identify and outline channel/media recommendations that may include:

- Social media
- Website and mobile
- Email
- SEO/content marketing
- Digital advertising

Direct Mail and Email Marketing

Raddon specializes in both consumer and small business communications, including deposit, card, lending, credit, wealth management and insurance lines of business. We will recommend specific campaigns based on your growth goals, such as:

- New customer acquisition campaigns
- Existing relationship expansion with upsell and cross-sell campaigns
- Valued account utilization and retention

Every initiative begins with using our unique expert approach to targeting, which includes mining your database, householding, segmentation, opportunity identification, list management and market/custom analytics.

After harnessing the power of your database, we develop campaigns that include the right combination of mail, email and lists for phone follow-up to ensure that your messages reach and resonate with each prospect or valued customer. Offline direct mail campaigns can be connected to online channels, with personalized URLs that create one-to-one messaging experiences, collect customer insights and data and/or initiate a dialogue between your customer and your financial institution.

Raddon provides detailed tracking and measurement of your marketing campaigns with the goal of continuous gains in household balances and profitability. We continually refine list criteria and marketing messages to improve response rates and maximize ROI.
